THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

Mr. Davis moved, and the River and Harbor bill was taken up.

Mr. Davis moved, and the River and Harbor bill was taken up.
The first amendment, reported by the Committee on Commerce, was in the item appropriating $75,000 for a ship canal from the Mississippi river to the Guif of Mexice, the same to be done by contract, by striking out the words, "to report said contract, the progress of said work and an estimate of the annual cost of keeping said channel open," and to insert in lieu thereof the following words: "to report the progress of the work, the amount necessary to complete it, and an estimate of the annual cost of keeping said channel open, and any contract made shall be limited to the amount hereby apprepriated."

tract made shall be limited to the amount hereby appropriated."

Air. Downs. (dem.) of La., opposed the amendment. It was verbal, and unnecessary. He thought the friends of the bill, in order to secure its passage, should vote down all amendments, and pass the bill as it now stands.

Mr. Hamlin. (dem.) of Me., explained that the amendment was necessary to prevent mistake as to the contract.

ment was necessary to prevent mistake as to the contract.

Mr. Cass. (dem.) of Mich., said he thought the bill a good one as it stood and he would object to any amendment being made to it. In doing so, he and his colleague were as disinterested as any Senator could be. Michigan, with a coast of one thousand miles, had appropriations only of forty thousand dollars, while other States, with far less coaste, had much larger appropriations. The bill was a moderate one, and, it samendments were adopted it would endanger its passage. The next session was only three months oft, and all injustice which may have been done can be obviated. The delay will not be of much consequence, for none of the appropriations for the north or northwest could be expended before spring.

Mr. Bonkano, (dem..) of Ark, pointed out the unequal appropriations made by the bill. Though the representatives of Western States have the most to complain of the inequalities, still it would hazard, if not defeat, the bill to make amendments, and send it back to the House at this time. He would oppose all amendments, and vote for the bill as it is.

ill to make amendments, and send it back to the frome this time. He would oppose all amendments, and vote or the bill as it is.

Mr. Souls: (dem.,) of La., was in favor of the amendment reported. It was necessary. If it were the only one, he would not insit upon it, or upon sending the bill to the House; but it was well known there were many other smedments to be made.

Mr. Barcier, (dem.) of Jowa, considered this was the time to test whether any amendments should be made. He thought the bill was unequal to its appropriations; but he would prefer to take it as it was, to defeating it by amendments. If amendments were made, he had several to offer himself.

amendments were made, he had several to offer himself.

Mr. Archison, (dem.) of Mo., said the Senators from Michigan and Indiana, had arrived at a principle, that all amendments to make perfect a bill, which was acknowledged by them to be defective—which does not provide for the West—shall be voted down. Only $260,000 were appropriated for the Mississippi river, when those very Senators knew that that sum would not purchase snag boats for the Missouri and Arkansaa alone, not saying anything or the graat trunk of the Mississippi. The bill was, in all its particulars, the same bill which was vetoed by President Polk. He was not aware that the sentil ments of Senators who voted to sustain that veto had clistrict in the Union, he would vote against it as fraudu-lent on its face.

Mr. Pratt. (whig) of Md., said that the argument that President Polk vetoed a bill similar to this, might or might not have force; but Congress passed that bill—Polk vetoed it, and the people vetoed him at the next elec-refused him.

Mr Adams. (dem.) of Miss., said on his own knowledge
he knew that Polk was not a candidate before that con-

Mr. PRATT defended the appropriation for Patapaco Mr. Prart defended the appropriation for Patapseo river, and epposed the adoption of any amendment.

Mr. Russ. (dem.) of Texas, protested sgainst the doctine now advanced, that this bill must be taken for better or worse, just as it stands. This was a sort of knockdown argument, which he did not approve of. If carried out, the Senate was to become mere registers of the appropriations of the House. He pointed out many of the defects contained in the bill. The appropriations for the Western rivers were wholly inadequate to the necessities of these works, and should be increased.

Mr. Cass said the debate showed that if the work of amendment was once commenced, every Senator would of these works, and should be increased.

Mr. Case said the debate showed that if the work of amendment was once commenced, every Senator would prepose amendments, and the bill would become overleaced, and would break down of its own weight. The reference to Polk's veto did not include him. He voted for that bill which was vetoed. His name was to be found in the affirmative, on its passage. While it was in Mr. Polk's hands, he even went to him, and suggested considerations why the President ought to sign it. His position then and now was in favor of any reasonable River and Harbor bill—the Chicago Conventual letter, and "noise and confusion" to the contrary, notwithstanding. He hoped no amendment would be made to the bill.

Mr. Bernan, (dem.) of S. C., said that such a bill as this ought to be accompanied by a report showing the necessity for the works. Hew was he to understand why he was to vote the particular sums contained in the bill for particular works? He would like to know upon what data the bill was prepared.

Mr. Davis, (whig) of Mass., said the bill was prepared, as all others were, upon estimates from departments of sums necessary for carrying on during the current year, works commenced by the government, or repairs of those in progress.

Mr. Mason, (dem.) of Va., opposed the principle of works commenced by the government, or repairs of those in progress.

Mr. Mason. (dem.) of Va., opposed the principle of cutting off all amendments. by agreement among the friends of the bill. He believed the House would take the bill. no matter what amendment the Senate might add to it.

Mr. Brill. (whig), of Tenn. said—Senators whose portion of the country was provided for, might say they were satisfied with the bill; but he was not. Minor objections had been provided for, yet nothing was done for the improvement of the Cumberland or Tennessee rivers. He was in favor of perfecting the bill by amendments, and if the House refused to adopt them, the Senate could recede.

the House refused to adopt them, the Senate could recede.

Mr. Downs renewed his opposition to endangering the bill by smendments.

Mr. Hark, (free soil), of N. H., followed in general remarks on the bill. He would vote for the amendments and would vote for the bill.

Mr. Nathony, (dem.), of Fa., said—The attempt to force the bill, without smendment, would cause him to vote against it. It contained no appropriation for the dangerous coast of Florida

Mr. Mason moved the postponement of the bill, for an exactive session Lost.

Mr. Secret followed, in support of the amendment and Mr. Downs opposed it

Mr. CHARR, (free soil), of Ohio, said there was plenty of time to amend the bill and send it to the House. He named several instances in which appropriations should be added.

Mr. Dawson (whig), of Ga., followed, reading first from Mr Case's speech at the last session, in which he opposed the bill then pending because there was no estimate for some of its items by departments. He opposed this adoption of the previous question by cutting off all amendments.

this adoption of the previous question by catting to amendments.

Mr. Cass replied that he occupied the same position then that he did now. If the Senator could show an item in this bill not estimated for, he would vote to strike it out.

Mr. Bright said the bill last year contained twentyone items not estimated for.

Mr. Dawson briefly replied.

The Senate, at a quarter past four o'clock, adjourned.

Ms. STUART said they had other important subjects to dispose of, and therefore to test the sense of the House he moved the previous question, which was seconded. Messrs. Walsh and Fowler obtained permission t print their views on the subject. Mr. Olds was interrupted in his closing speech by the expiration of the morning hour.

A resolution was adopted to close the general debate on the Navy Appropriation bill in half an hour. The Hous the Navy Appropriation bill in half an hour. The Housewent into committee on that bill.

Mr. Skelton, (dem.) of N. J., speke in favor of an amendment, authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to carry out the contract with Robert L. Stevens, for constructing a steamship, shot and bomb proof. He said money and time have already been expended upon the work, and that the entire cost would not exceed $500.000-sn inconsiderable sum, when considered in connection with harbor defence, particularly that of New York, where there is so much wealth and commerce. He proceeded to show that this means of defence is cheaper, and more efficient than fortifications, as it can be brought to act immediately in case of sudden invasion.

Mr. Houston, (dem.) of Ala. replied to the remarks delivered yesterday, by Mr. Stanton, (dem.) of fennessee, who had complained that the Committee on Ways and Means had reduced, to a great extent, the appropriations for the navy yards.

The clause appropriating $1,065,000 for the repair of vessels in ordinary, and for the wear and tear of vessels in commission, including fuel and purchase of hemp, having been read.

Mr. Stanton, offered the following amendment:—

Prosper A. The Democratic State Convention

PRIMARY ELECTIONS IN ALBANY. ALBANY, August 18, 1852. The democrats held an election to-day for choice of delegates to the District Convention, to select delegates to the State Convention. The canvass was spirited between the barnburners and hunkers, and the result shows that the "hardshells" carried every ward in the city, ex-cepting the Sixth. The probability is that three of the four delegates from this county will be against Corning' and for Mather, for Governor.

The Whigs of the west hold a ratification meeting at Columbus, Ohio, on the 8th of September. Thomas Henry Clay and the Whig Nomi-

Thomas H. Clay, son of Henry Clay, in a letter to Col. Pickett, of this city, contradicts the story that he would not support Gen. Scott, and that he had so informed hi father previous to his death. He says, "I remarked to my father that I would not support, by my vote, the nominee of the convention, unless the approval of the nominee of the convention, unless the approval of the compronise measures by the convention was strong and emphatic. They are strong enough for me. General Scott has adopted them, and I believe him to be a man of honor. Mr. Graham's position was never equivocal. If the vote of so humble an individual as myself be of any consequence, I authorize you to give this what publication you choose. If alive I vote for Scott and Graham."

Doubts as to the Loss of the Staffordshire.

BALTIMORE, August 18, 1852. Some intelligence gathered from Capt. Cogshell, of the brig Juliet, arrived here on the 30th ult., adds doubts as to the truth of the reported loss of the ship Staffordshire, of Boston. Capt. G. states that when five days out from Rio de Janeiro, on the 16th June, in latitude 22 S., longitude 36 20 W., he exchanged signals with a very large ship, painted black, with a red streak. Her signal was red, with a white diamond in it, and a swallow tail burgee. The white diamond in it, and a swallow tail burgee. The ship had a large number of passengers on board, many of whom crowded on the house on deck, which the captain thinks was built over the wheel. She had also a quantity of gilding on her stern, and something that looked like an agie. The signal displayed was that of the Messrs. Train, of Boston, owners of the Staffordshire, and Capt. Q. is of opinion that the ship he saw was her. If this is the case, there is reason to hope that there is some mistake in the account of her loss, as it would have been almost impossible for her to have made the passage round Cape Horn, been wrecked, and the account thereof have reached the United States in about sixty days from the time she was seen by Capt. G.

The Recent Accident on the Long Island Railboard.—The jury of inquest summoned by Coroner Ball, to inquire into the cause of the death of John Segelken, who was killed, on Monday, by being run over by the ears of the Long Island Railroad, made the following presentment, to be submitted to the Common Council, at the next meeting:—

"The jury of inquest would respectfully present to the Common Council of the eity of Brooklyn, that an ordinance should be passed similar to the one passed in relation to boys getting on behind omnibuses. Many of the jury reside and do business on Atlantic street, and are cognizant of the fact that it is the common practice for children to watch the coming of trains, and then endeavor to jump on the platforms, to the imminent danger of their lives, notwithe tanding every means taken by the employees of the railroad to prevent their so doing. The practice is becoming so frequent, and the danger to children so great, that they feel it a duty to press upon your honorable body some speedy and stringent action to prevent its continuance."

Suicide av raking Poison.—Coroner Ives yesterday held an inquest, at the residence of the Rev. Mr. Halsey, No. 21 North Moore street, on the body of Mary Quian, a domestic in the family, who committed suicide by taking an over dose of some narcotic poison. The deceased, it seems, was a native of Ireland, and twenty-three years of age, and had been cook in Mr. Halsey's employ for the last three years past. Latterly it was noticed that she bees me despondent, and very low spirited, exclaiming frequently that she would rather die than live; that George — would be the death-of her. This George frequently that she would rather die than live; that George — would be the death-of her. This George of the cause of her destroying her life. On Monday last, Mr. Halsey and family being out of town, Elizabeth Igo, cousin to the deceased, who was likewise a servant in the house, noticed an unusual downcast appearance in Mary; and that night, on going to bed, Mary seemed to be very uneasy, but in a short time she appeared to fall asleep, and in the morning, about four o'clock, Elizabeth was woke up by the deceased making a loud breathing and rattling in the threat. Elizabeth touched her and found her hands and arms cold. She then endeavored to arouse her, but finding that impossible, assistance was pocured, and Dr. Maxwell sent for. The physician came, and from the coma state she was in, supposed it to be upoplexy, and spened the vein in the arm and took some blood from her. It did not, however, give any relief. In the afternoon, Dr. Robinson attended. He used the stomach pump, but all the remedies proved unavaling, as she died at 12 o'clock. That night Dr. Lidell, as she died at 12 o clock. That night Dr. Lidell, surgeon to the Coroner made a post moriem examination of the body, but could not find any decided traces of poison. The brain was not conjested, and the conjestion of the lungs was only slightly exhibited; yet from all the circumstances, the fact of finding an empty bottle labelled laudanum, and the general appearance of the body, it was evident, is the opinion of the medical wisnesses, that the deceased came to her death by some narcotic poison. The jury, after a deliberation of over an hour, found "That the deceased came to her death by an overdose of some narcotic poison, supposed to have been administered by herself." The body was taken by the sister of deceased to her residues up town, from whence the funeral will take the control of the lings of their domestic, immediately returned home and rendered every possible aid in their power, in the kindest manner, towards the unfortunate deceased.

Metancholy Drowning at Long Branch—Two Lives Lost—A sad casually occurred on Monday evening, at Deal, near Long Branch, below Sandy Hook, by which Mr John F. Carlisle, of the firm of Skiddy & Carlisle, Wall street, and a son of Mr. Henry R. Worthington, of 48 State street, Brocklyn, lost their lives. A party, consisting of Mr. John Newbould, of Brocklyn, his son, a young lad, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Worthington, and their ron, also a young lad, set out from the bearding-house of Mr Benjamin Nooly, and repaired to the beach for a stroll. Mr Newbould and the two lads went in to bathe. Young Worthington was borne out from the shore by the cbb tide, when Mr. Newbould and the boy's father swam, to his secue. Masntime Mr. Newbould's son had got out, and ran to the boarding-house, a distance of three-quarters of a mile, where he gave the alarm. Mr. Carlisle, a Mr. Barton, and a Mr. Bergh ran down sud arrived quite heated at the spot. They plunged in and swam to the rescue of the boy. Mr. Newbould and the lads father get exhausted and had to leave him. Mr. Bergh reached him and brought him to the outer bat and there he found the body of Mr. Carlisle under the water, insensible. A beat brought the three to shore, where Mr. Carlisle immediately hyeathed his last, and the boy died at eleven o'clock the same night. It is thought that Mr. Carlisle's death was caused by a determination of bleed to his head, from plunging so suddenly into the water when heated. His body, accompanied by his mother and sister was brought up on Tuesday to New York. The body of Mr. Worthington's son came upon the same evening.
